April Program

This month's program will be presented by Clarence Gerke.

Clarence grew up in the William Penn area of Washington County. He will talk about the history of William Penn. He is an owner of Memorial Oaks Chapel in Brenham and will also discuss information that can be found in funeral home records that can be used for genealogical research.

Please join us for this interesting and informative presentation.

Question: Joseph McLaughlin wrote "I'm attempting to see if there was ever any known and recorded 'public access' to the Old Gates-Perry Cemetery?" Feb 29, 2020, pat64499@yahoo.com

Answer: As far as we know, there has only been a private road to the cemetery. Jan Kelm

Question: Shelly Rhodes contacted us about the Clark and Belcher families. Shelly is the daughter of Caren Dee Eames, who had been in correspondence with us several years ago. Caren had other issues come up and our emails stopped. Shelly has a paternal great uncle, David Thomas, who was a signer of the TX Declaration. She is also still working on her maternal families, Clark and Belcher, and is interested in applying for a historical marker for the family.

Answer: I gave Shelly information about applying for the marker. I also gave her the name of the owner of the property on which the Clark Cemetery is located.

Question: I need to retain the services of a paid researcher to search for property records in Washington and Waller counties. Can you recommend or refer such a person? This is not a large project. I estimate five to eight hours. Mark Lomax, Pasadena, CA, mlomax1074@gmail.com Feb 16, 2020

Answer: I explained that I didn't know of a paid researcher in Washington County and have no connection to Waller County. I suggested he send me the names of his family so I could check my records to see if I already had information on them. I also offered to do some basic research in the county courthouse and pass on to him what documents were there so he could proceed to make the contact at the WC offices if he wanted official copies. I mentioned that we offer these services at no charge and, if he were happy with what I sent, we would appreciate a donation. He responded that he would take me up on the offer but I've not heard from him since. I don't know the names he is researching at this time.

Findagrave: We continue to have requests for corrections or added information on our Findagrave memorials. For many cemeteries, we have entered what we knew at the time, basically from a walkover or the actual listing from a cemetery. Tim Allen has sent us many comments during the past month for burials in Flat Prairie Cemetery. He seems to have reviewed each burial we have listed to see if he can find more information on that person, such as death certificates or census records, to obtain the parents' names, etc. I always like to review the suggestions, so this has taken a tremendous amount of time this month to review. He has done some excellent work. I've questioned a couple of his suggestions and we've worked through them together to come to a solution. Although it is still ongoing and a very time-consuming process, I am very appreciative of what he is doing.

An Invitation to Join

Hello Washington County Texas!

I am a participant in a genetic genealogy project hosted by Hamilton County, Ohio Genealogical Society that hopes to connect Germans with their "long lost cousins" in the USA.

Since your county has descendants of mid-19th century German immigrants, this project might be of interest to your members.

In my personal experience, I have quite a few DNA matches with people in Washington County, Texas or their near ancestors settled in your county and fanned out from there. My ancestors settled in Washington County, Illinois and some of their descendants ended up in your county. All three counties had immigrants from Minden-Lubbecke, NRW and Lower Saxony.

Even if your members are not descended from those particular areas, please invite them join the project.
